

STUART JOHN FRASER
Chairman of the Policy & Resources Committee
City of London

Stuart Fraser is Policy Chairman for the City of London Corporation, which involves setting the strategic priorities, resources and policies for the City of London, the local authority for the Square Mile - the world's leading international, financial and business centre. He chairs the Policy & Resources Committee, which leads the City of London's relations with local and regional government, Westminster, Whitehall, Brussels, the United States as well as the emerging markets of China and India, and is responsible for economic development, public relations and public affairs.

A Member of the City of London Corporation since 1993, Stuart is a former Chairman of the City's Planning Committee (1997 – 2000) and Deputy Chairman of the Policy & Resources Committee (2004 – 2008). In his capacity as Policy Chairman, Stuart represents the City of London on a number of key political and financial bodies, including the Chancellor's High Level Group and various London and nationwide groups tasked with responding to the financial downturn and addressing issues over competitiveness.

Stuart came to the City of London in 1963 as a trainee stockbroker and over the course of his career moved through a succession of investment related disciplines, including Foreign Exchange, Money Broking, International Equities, Investment Research and Fund Management, becoming a member of the London Stock Exchange in 1980. Stuart is currently a divisional director of Brewin Dolphin Securities, the UK's largest independent quoted stockbroker responsible for the management of Private Client, Charitable and Trust investment portfolios and is Chairman of the Group's Asset Allocation Committee. He is an Associate of the Association of Investment Management and Research and a Fellow of the Securities Institute.
